THE UNIQUE MESSAGE AND THE UNIVERSAL MISSION OF CHRISTIANITY

BY JAMES FRANKLIN LOVE, D. D.

12 mo. 256 Pages. Price $1.25.

In this book the author seeks to find the fundamental reason for missions and the essential elements in the missionary message.

The Missionary Review of the World, New York: "There is no more important subject in connection with the missionary work of the church than the essential character and value of the Gospel message for the whole world. If Christ brought no all important message which other religions do not possess, or if this message is not adapted to all races and classes of men, then there is no sufficient reason for the Christian propaganda. Dr. Love shows that the truths that actually save men are confined to Christianity, and that they apply with equal force to all mankind."

H. C. MARIE, D. D., LL. D., Boston, Mass.: "I have read with much interest and approval Dr. Love's admirable book, THE UNIQUE MESSAGE AND THE UNIVERSAL MISSION OF CHRISTIANITY. I am always glad to see any discussion of the mission of Christianity which couples it with its distinctive message, for the two most invariably go together to have real cogency and enduring value. Dr. Love's contribution in this line of thought is one of great worth."

B. H. CARROLL, D. D., LL. D., late President of Southwestern Baptist Theological Seminary: "I have read with unflagging interest Dr. Love's book on THE UNIQUE MESSAGE AND THE UNIVERSAL MISSION OF CHRISTIANITY. The discussion of this great double theme by Dr. Love is one of the most valuable contributions to modern Christian literature * * * The book is great. It should be in every preacher's library; yea, in every layman's."

J. M. FROST, D. D., LL. D., late Corresponding Secretary of the Sunday-School Board, Southern Baptist Convention: "As I passed over its stirring passages, again and again came the wish that many hundreds of our preachers would read this book, and get its great fundamental principles well set in their minds. The book is sermon-producing, and will awaken many a preacher to a new line of thought, and open up to him new sermons with which to refresh his people. It is really a great book."

F. B. MEYER, B. A., London: "I have found it extremely suggestive. It contends with great force and fervor that the vital doctrines of Christianity are unique, and urges, therefore, the claim of missionary effort. The style is clear and forcible, and the argument grips the reader."

W. R. L. SMITH, D. D., LL. D.: "Every thoughtful preacher grapples sooner or later with the question: What are the distinctive features of our Christianity? This is exactly the inquiry to which Dr. Love addresses himself. I think his insight has seized the vital points of differentiation, and the discussion shows marked power of grasp and statement. It is a good piece of literary art. No ambitious phrasing. Great conviction and burning thought achieve their own winning diction. The paragraphs tingle and glow with a genuine eloquence. They march forth as though they had to be written. Here is a literary craftsman who compels the admiration of our brotherhood. Dr. Love reads widely and thinks clearly. How can a mission secretary find time to devour so many great books? Possibly not one in five hundred of our pastors can match him in the sweep of his reading. The book is rich and stimulating."

J. B. GAMBRELL, D. D., LL. D., President Southern Baptist Convention: "It is really a great discussion of the rallying principles of Christianity. It is a book to be studied, and to be studied with care, because it is not diluted thought but concentrated thought. Dr. Love has discussed the essential elements in Christianity which differentiate and make it the one religion which must conquer the world. It is a most timely book, and I wish our preachers and laymen, and especially men who are in condition to shape public thought, might get this book and make a close study of it. The language is especially strong and forceful."

JOHN E. WHITE, D. D.: "One wonder was in my mind on the first glance of the volume. It was that Dr. Love could have gotten the 'wee great hours' out of a secretary's life to have a book at all, and the wonder grew that it should be a book on such large lines, so wide in its outlook and sympathy, and so generous in its embrace of the vaster doctrines of Christianity. But here is the book, grappling before my eyes with the great themes of man, his human necessity requiring and defining a divine word from God to fulfill his broken dreams and to piece into wholeness the garment of sacred truth. This is the first half of the book. The second and larger part is an argument answering that God has made that desired and necessary revelation to man, that it is self-unveiling divinity in humanity. Then in their progressive order come the six strongest chapters of the book, the incarnation, the atonement, etc. The style of the writing is careful and accurate."

E. P. ALDREDGE, D. D.: "One of the truly remarkable things about this book is its style. From the first chapter to the last page, there is not a dull—we had almost said, a commonplace expression. In epigrammatic, pointed, livid, definitive axiomatical statement, and in the finer feeling for and the discriminative use of the precise word, it is almost a model of choice English."

The Herald and Presbyter, Ohio: "In a large and fundamental way the author treats of the subject of missions in this very striking and excellent volume."

Christian Advocate, New York: "This book will do much good as a clearly written statement of the church's obligation to the world."

PROF. WILLIAM CLEVER WILKINSON, University of Chicago: "It has done me good. I admire the fluent eloquence. I rejoice in the book."

The Dallas (Texas) Morning News: "Original and unusually forceful contribution to evangelical literature."

The Christian Index, Atlanta, Ga.: "In this day, when rationalism has sought to cast the shadow of doubt on some, if not all, of these fundamentals, it is refreshing and invigorating to read such strong and well supported arguments for them. Dr. Love gives evidence in his work of wide reading and deep thinking."

The Maryland Messenger, Baltimore: "It is one of the most delightful and stimulating books of recent years. We feel genuine pride that its lucid and scholarly pages came from the gifted pen of one of our Southern Baptist men. The volume deals with the philosophy of missions in a manner that is at once penetrating and unusual, and yet not dry nor pedantic."

Biblical Recorder, North Carolina: "A great book. Lofty in conception. Cogent in argument. Vigorous in thought and racy in style. It shows research, fairness, grasp, loyalty to the truth. It is permeated with clear thinking, spiritual passion and missionary zeal."

THE MISSION OF OUR NATION

BY JAMES FRANKLIN LOVE, D. D.

12 mo. 240 Pages. Price $1.00.

This book expounds the thesis that the mission of America is to give democracy and evangelical religion to the world.

The Herald of Gospel Liberty, Ohio: "One of the most thoughtful and vigorous discussions we have seen in many a day. If Dr. Love's conception of the mission of our nation could be given to every citizen of the United States, we candidly believe it would be worth more than millions spent in building warships."

The Baptist Teacher: "Dr. Love shows himself at once a historian and a prophet as he opens the book of the past, and points out its suggestion for the future. The reader is irresistibly carried forward to the conclusions of the author."

The Baptist Observer, Indiana: "This book, in a statesmanlike way, is especially a home mission discussion on broad lines with the foreign mission inference and objective. It is a message for the evangelical, Christian and patriotic American."

The Homiletic Review, New York: "The style is lively, vivid and is indeed often really impassioned and eloquent."

The Pittsburg Christian Advocate: "The style is attractive and the work inspiring."

The Christian World, Cleveland, Ohio: "A ringing challenge to American Christians. Its message is timely and significant."

The Review and Expositor, Southern Baptist Theological Seminary, Louisville, Ky.: "It is difficult to lay the book down having begun it. Having finished it, the evangelical Christian and the patriotic American will undertake his task with quickened pulse, clear eye and resolute purpose."

J. W. GILLON, D. D., Corresponding Secretary, Tennessee Baptist State Convention: "I have just finished reading this charming book. To me it is more fascinating than a novel. In an irresistible way he presents the American task and opportunity."

CALVIN S. BLACKWELL, D. D., in the Religious Herald: "It is charged with the genius of the Protestant program for America. The whole discussion is sober, constructive, suggestive. That it is reverent does not need saying. A deep culture is evident on every page, but it is not presented with any rhetorical varnish. It is written with an intellectual power, a literary charm and a contagious earnestness of spirit that grips the reader and holds him to the end."

F. M. McCONNELL, D. D., Corresponding Secretary Oklahoma Convention: "It is full of striking sentences, and the whole argument is so true and elevating, so scholarly, timely and practical that the reader is charmed, instructed and moved to higher patriotism and a more earnest, faithful, consecrated Christian life from the first page to the last. Every American home ought to have this book, and every American ought to know its contents."

Baptist Standard, Dallas, Texas: "It is one of the sanest, yet most vigorous books on missions we have ever read. Dr. Love is a statesman and a prophet."

REV. HIGHT C. MOORE, D. D., Secretary Southern Baptist Convention: "Dr. Love is a diligent student, a man of vision, a clear and gifted writer, a bringer of things to pass in the Kingdom. All of these traits shine out in his book, for it is scholarly in research, statesmanlike in its conception, entertaining in style, and practical in its application."

Mission Studies, Chicago: "We beg you to read this forcible, convincing, alarming book."

THE UNION MOVEMENT

BY JAMES FRANKLIN LOVE, D. D.

16 mo. Price 75 cents.

The object of this book is to furnish the reader with the facts and purposes of the Union Movement as presented in the writings of the friends of the movement. See what representative men think of it.

J. B. GAMBRELL, D.D., LL.D., President Southern Baptist Convention: "The unmistakable purpose of the book is to unify Southern Baptists on and around the missionary program set out by the Convention in formal action. It is constructive. It is in line with the announced policies of the great Convention Dr. Love serves. The purpose is every way worthy. Dr. Love presents documentary evidence from authoritative sources to prove the ultimate object of the leaders. He has done his work well. The temper of the work is excellent. There is not a harsh grating sentence in the book. The style is simple and clear. Every Baptist who wants to know what confronts us ought to get a copy of this book and read it."

WALTER N. JOHNSON, D. D., Corresponding Secretary North Carolina State Convention: "Dr. J. F. Love has done a service in writing his book on the "Union Movement." He says in it the very word that was waiting to be said. If it had gone much longer unsaid, things might have got into a bad shape for us. His statement has set our situation into the clear. There is not a discourteous or unloving word in the whole volume. There is not a phrase that intentionally casts suspicion upon anybody's motives. You had better get Love's book."

S. B. ROGERS, D. D., Corresponding Secretary Florida Baptist State Convention: "It touches an issue most vital to Baptist people and contains information which should be known by every Baptist in America, and by every Baptist throughout the world. We are willing to buy it at wholesale and furnish it at cost if Florida Baptists will read it. Do not forget the title, THE UNION MOVEMENT. It is greatly worth your while to read it."

Baptist Standard, Texas: "In his volume, entitled THE UNION MOVEMENT, Secretary Love deals with the whole question in a courteous and fraternal spirit, but bases the discussion on Scripture rather than sentiment. From the literature of the movement he shows that the program of the Union Movement, and particularly in the foreign fields, embraces the use of a common name for national evangelical churches, such as the Christian Church of China," "The Evangelical Church in Chile," etc."

Western Recorder, Kentucky: "The book is a timely, striking and weighty deliverance on this important question."

Baptist and Repeator, Tennessee: "The author of this book needs no introduction as a specialist in missionary problems. As a missionary statesman he brings to the consideration of the Union Movement in missions a keen appreciation of tendencies and a devout denominational loyalty. The present book is a study of the movement toward elimination of denominational lines upon the foreign mission field. Dr. Love is not opposed to certain cooperation with other denominations on the foreign field, but he brings a vibrant call to loyalty in the observance of denominational peculiarities. We suggest this book as a tonic well worth taking."

B. W. SPILMAN, D. D., Field Secretary to Educational Institutions, in Biblical Recorder: "In a sweet spirit this loyal Christian statesman has said some things which need to be said. There is no attack upon any denomination. But Dr. Love has told the plain truth about the movement, well organized and backed by masterful generals and money in abundance. Read his message. It will be a Christian tonic."

Christian Index, Georgia: "The author of this book has rendered a timely and most valuable service to his denomination and other denominations as well. He has presented the very heart of the Union Movement. He has laid bare its entire scheme, and has pointed out the allied agencies which are set for carrying out its designs. Documentary evidence is cited to show that he is correct in every position he takes. As a rule, it does not seem imperative that a given new book should have universal circulation among the Baptist, but if there ever was a book that ought to be in every Baptist home in America, Dr. Love's new book entitled THE UNION MOVEMENT, is that book."

Word and Way, Missouri: "The author has obtained a standard among his brethren as a thinker, counselor, leader second to none. His handling of this theme reveals a heart of great sympathy, tenderness and courage as well as great tact and intellect. The book has a great message that merits reading."

The Watchman-Examiner, New York: "The book is distinctly against present-day tendencies. It is thought provocative and well worth reading."

The Florida Baptist Witness: "It is a candid, dignified discussion of the question of the union and co-operation of denominations in the mission work on the foreign fields. It is one of the most important discussions for many a day. Dr. Love has done the denomination a great service in writing this book."

The Baptist Record, Mississippi: "It is a clear, forceful presentation of facts which are of great interest to Baptists, and to all who sincerely desire the triumph of truth and the promotion of the Kingdom. Dr. Love shows himself in hearty sympathy with the pronouncement and plan of the Southern Baptist Convention in doing mission work."

B. F. RODMAN, D. D., in Illinois Baptist: "Brother Love handles the question in a masterly way, and it will pay any one to secure the book and peruse its pages, and see what is going on in the line of federation of our mission work as well as the federation of the denominations throughout the land."

The Religious Herald, Virginia: "We gladly give place in another column to Dr. Gambrell's appreciative notice of Dr. Love's recent volume on the Union Movement. Dr. Love has written carefully, ably and informingly, and in excellent spirit. Dr. Love's book will doubtless be of special value to our missionaries, a tonic to any whose denominational spirit may be weak and anaemic and a source of comfort and encouragement to those who are resisting the disturbing and disintegrating influence of this propaganda."

DR. E. Y. MULLINS, President Southern Baptist Theological Seminary: "I had not read Dr. Love's book until within the last few days, not having had time to do so when it first appeared. I think he has made out his case beyond a peradventure, that there is a movement fraught with great peril, and systematically promoted by some men, and I think he has done a splendid service to the denomination in bringing it out fully into the light. We, of course, have known of this all along, but Dr. Love has made it clear for everybody to see."

A. T. ROBERTSON, D. D., LL.D., in Watchman-Examiner, New York: "Dr. Love's book has met with a hearty and deserved welcome as a timely warning in a real crisis. It is clear that both Dr. Gambrell and Dr. Mullins are opposed to organic union, and both strongly commend Dr. Love's book, which incidentally is getting a fine free advertisement."

The Southwestern Journal of Theology: "I wish every Christian in the world could read this great book. The principles it enunciates are true, and the program it outlines, by which Baptist should meet this movement, is a sane and safe one. It is good that our Foreign Mission leader has, in such a statesman-like and broad-spirited way set out the Baptist position at this critical time. The Southern Baptist Convention and many of the State conventions have taken high ground and expressed themselves very clearly upon this important matter. Every missionary of the Southern Board should remain true to the position expressed by Southern Baptists. All the Baptist papers of the South are in accord with this view, and the whole Southern Baptist Convention, practically to a man, stands firm. Dr. Love has written an epochal book."

L. R. SCARBOROUGH, D. D., President Southwestern Theological Seminary and Director-General of the 75-Million Campaign: "It is a dynamic of denominationalism of the highest order. Its message is as clear as noonday cloudless light; it is truth-laden and marked by a brotherliness and Christly spirit characteristic of the great spiritual statesman who wrote it. It gives the history, organization, purpose, plans and program of this great modern missionary and ecclesiastical movement. I commend in toto and with my deepest soul, Dr. Love's great, tidal, epoch-making, truth-laden, Christly-spirited book to my brethren everywhere."

THE PAPAL INVASION

BY J. F. LOVE, D. D.

The Biblical Recorder, North Carolina: "Whatever comes from the pen of Dr. James F. Love is bound to be both thoughtful and timely. And this applies strictly to his recent pamphlet entitled, THE PAPAL INVASION OR ROMAN CATHOLIC METHODS TO DATE. It deals with Romanism in America, declares Rome's practice of un-Americanism, laments Rome's influence at the seat of the nation, reveals the methods of Romanism to date, censures Roman Catholic boycott and intimidations, declares Romanism a moral failure, discusses the moral tone of Catholic papers, and forecasts the approaching crisis. He closes urging that we love our Catholic neighbors, and that we save America in order to prove the value of evangelical faith. It is a vital and valuable discussion of an important theme."

THE GOSPEL IN TWO ACTS

BY J. F. LOVE, D. D.

16 mo. Price 10 cents

DR. BEN COX: "I have never in my life read anything which sets forth the ordinances of the church in a more interesting, inviting, convincing manner."

The Western Recorder: "It is a tremendously strong and impressive statement of the place and value of the ordinances in the Gospel. There is nothing like it, and nothing superior to it in its line. Thousands ought to use this pamphlet among their friends who need to know our position."
